

1 Prepared By:
2 Michael Jones, CA Bar No. 271574
3 M. Jones & Associates, PC
4 505 North Tustin Ave, Suite 105
5 Santa Ana, CA 92705
6 Telephone: (714) 795-2346
7 Facsimile: (888) 341-5213
8 Email: mike@MJonesOC.com

9 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
10 CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
11 WESTERN DIVISION

12
13 UNITED POULTRY CONCERNS,

14
15 Plaintiff,

16 v.

17
18 CHABAD OF IRVINE; ALTER
19 TENENBAUM, IN HIS
20 INDIVIDUAL, CAPACITY; DOES 1
21 THROUGH 50,

22 Defendants

Case No.
8:16-CV-01810-AB-(GJSx)

DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISSOLVE TEMPORARY
RESTRAINING ORDER;
OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S
PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION
MOTION; AND MOTION TO STRIKE THE COMPLAINT

HEARING SCHEDULED
DATE: OCTOBER 13, 2016
TIME: 10:00 AM

ASSIGNED TO HON. ANDRÉ
BIROTTE JR., District Judge;
HON. GAIL J. STANDISH, Magistrate
Judge

1 Defendants Chabad of Irvine and Alter Tenenbaum (collectively, “Chabad”)
2 bring this emergency motion to dissolve the ex parte temporary restraining order
3 (“TRO”), issued on October 7, 2016. The Chabad respectfully requests that the 4 TRO be dissolved today in time for Yom Kippur this evening, when the kaporos<sup>1</sup>
5 ceremony takes place. As explained further, the kaporos ceremony is humanely
6 performed in a manner consistent with federal and state animal slaughter laws and 7 is a centuries-old religious practice that is constitutionally protected. The United
8 States Supreme Court has held – unanimously – that laws may not permit the 9 killing of animals for secular purposes while singling out for prohibition the 10 killing of animals for religious purposes. See Church of Lukumi Babalu Aye v.
11 City of Hialeah, 508 U.S. 520, 537-38 (1993) (holding that First Amendment
12 precludes application of Florida’s animal cruelty statute to religious sacrifice of 13 animals). In the face of this holding, Plaintiff United Poultry Concerns 14 (“Plaintiff”) has not satisfied and cannot satisfy the requirements necessary for an 15 ex parte TRO or a preliminary injunction to issue. To assist the Court, Chabad
16 moves for a telephonic hearing to take place today on the request to lift the TRO.
17
18
19
20
21
22

23 Plaintiff has also failed to satisfy the requirements for obtaining a 24 preliminary injunction. Plaintiff lacks standing to bring an action under 25 California’s Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”), as it alleges no cognizable injury
26
27

---

28 <sup>1</sup> Sometimes referred to as kaparot.

1 as a result of the Chabad’s religious practices. What is more, the UCL, which is
2 directed at business and commercial conduct, does not apply to religious
3 ceremonies. And, more basically, Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate any of the 4 traditional elements required to obtain injunctive relief, while the Chabad will 5 suffer irreparable harm if they are precluded, on the eve of Yom Kippur, from 6 practicing a ritual central to their faith. Accordingly, the Court should deny
7 Plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction.
8
9

10
11 Finally, the Chabad moves to strike Plaintiff’s Complaint as a violation of a 12 California statute prohibiting strategic lawsuits against public participation (i.e., 13 the Anti-SLAPP statute).
14

15
16 I. Motion to Dissolve Ex Parte Temporary Restraining
17 Order
18

19 The ex parte TRO must be dissolved because Plaintiff cannot and has not 20 satisfied its heavy burden for obtaining such extraordinary relief. Without any 21 notice or opportunity to be heard, the Chabad has been restrained from engaging 22 in a centuries’ old religious practice on the eve of one their faith’s most holy days.
23 This affront to both First Amendment rights and basic due process principles
24 cannot be allowed to stand.
25
26
27
28

1 To support an ex parte TRO, “the evidence must show that the moving
2 party’s cause will be irreparably prejudiced if the underlying motion is heard
3 according to regular noticed motion procedures. Second, it must be established
4 that the moving party is without fault in creating the crisis that requires ex parte
5 relief, or that the crisis occurred as a result of excusable neglect.” Mission Power
6 Eng’g Co. v. Cont’l Cas. Co., 883 F. Supp. 488, 492 (C.D. Cal. 1995). As the 7 Ninth Circuit explained, “circumstances justifying the issuance of an ex parte
8 order are extremely limited.” Reno Air Racing Ass’n v. McCord, 452 F.3d 1126,
9 1131 (9th Cir. 2006) (citing Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Teamsters, 415 U.S. 423
10 (1974)). Such orders are rare because they deny parties essential procedural 11 safeguards. Granny Goose, 415 U.S. at 439 (“[O]ur entire jurisprudence runs 12 counter to the notion of court action taken before reasonable notice and an 13 opportunity to be heard has been granted both sides of a dispute.”).

14
15
16
17
18
19 Critically, Plaintiff’s application for a TRO did not put forth any reason
20 justifying its late filing. This federal action and application for a TRO were filed
21 on September 29, 2016, just a few days before Rosh Hashanah and less than two
22 weeks before Yom Kippur, when kaporos ceremonies take place. Kaporos
23 ceremonies have been taking place for decades in this state and for centuries
24 around the world. Plaintiff alleges knowledge of the Chabad’s kaporos practice
25 dating back to 2014. Compl. ¶¶ 26-27, Doc. 1. It was also conceded that Plaintiff
26
27
28

1 has been monitoring the proceeding in state court against the Chabad, which has
2 been pending since September 14, 2015. Decl. Bryan Pease ¶ 12, Doc. 13. These 3 concessions alone show that Plaintiff could have raised its claims earlier, without
4 prejudicing the Chabad or denying it an opportunity to be heard. To the extent
5 there is a crisis requiring relief – and there is not – it was one of Plaintiff’s own
6 making in delaying the filing of their action until September 29th. At the same
7 time, Plaintiff’s conduct has precipitated a crisis, requiring the Chabad to retain
8 counsel and prepare this briefing in less than 24 hours. In short, the ex parte TRO
9 must be dissolved because Plaintiff created the crisis, prejudicing the Chabad.
10
11
12

13 Further, circumstances usually justifying ex parte TROs are absent here.
14 Such orders are often issued where the defendants are likely to destroy evidence or 15 take other actions to subvert the court system. See Reno Air, 452 F.3d at 1131.
16 There are no such extraordinary circumstances here to justify this extraordinary
17 order. The TRO must be dissolved. As explained in the following section, the 18 TRO also must be dissolved for the reasons the Plaintiff’s motion for a
19 preliminary injunction must be denied.<sup>2</sup>
20
21
22
23
24
25
26

---

27 <sup>2</sup> The preliminary injunction legal standard is essentially the same as the standard
28 for temporary restraining orders.

1 II. Opposition to Plaintiff’s Motion for a Preliminary
2 Injunction

3 Plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction must be denied. A
4 preliminary injunction is also “an extraordinary remedy that may only be awarded
5 upon a clear showing that the plaintiff is entitled to such relief.” Winter v. NRDC,
6 Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 22, (2008). It is “never awarded as of right.” Id. at 24. “A
7 plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must establish [1] that he is likely to 8 succeed on the merits, [2] that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence
9 of preliminary relief, [3] that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and [4] that 10 an injunction is in the public interest.” Thalheimer v. City of San Diego, 645 F.3d
11 1109, 1115 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Winter, 555 U.S. at 24-25). Plaintiff cannot 12 make any of these showings here.
13
14
15
16
17

18 A. LIKELIHOOD OF SUCCESS ON THE MERITS

19
20 Plaintiff has not demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits for each
21 of the reasons that follow. This list of reasons is non-exhaustive.
22

23 1. Plaintiff Lacks Standing.

24 As an initial matter, Plaintiff cannot succeed on the merits because it has 25 failed to establish the standing requirements necessary to assert a UCL claim. In 26 order to have standing to pursue a UCL claim, a plaintiff must “(1) establish a loss
27 or deprivation of money or property sufficient to qualify as injury in fact, i.e., 28

1 economic injury, and (2) show that the economic injury was the result of, i.e., 2 caused by, the unfair business practice or false advertising that is the gravamen of
3 the claim.” Kwikset Corp. v. Superior Court, 51 Cal. 4th 310, 322 (2011)
4 (emphasis in original). Plaintiff’s claim fails on both elements.
5

6 First, Plaintiff fails to identify any economic injury sufficient to qualify as 7 injury in fact. The decision in Animal Legal Defense Fund v. LT Napa Partners
8 LLC offers no support to Plaintiff. 234 Cal. App. 4th 1270 (2015).<sup>3</sup> In Napa
9 Partners, the California Court of Appeal held that an organization has standing if 10 it can show harm caused by a diversion of resources and the frustration of 11 plaintiff’s advocacy efforts. Id. at 1283. Plaintiff has made no allegation that it
12 diverted resources from other activities. The only allegation is that “STEINAU’s
13 time working for Plaintiff was diverted to investigating and exposing these acts,
14 and attempting to convince authorities to take action.” Compl. ¶ 25. There is no
15 reference to the other activities in which Steinau was engaged. Unlike the plaintiff
16 in Napa Partners who paid a private investigator, there is no allegation that 17
18
19
20
21

---

22
23
24
25
26
27
28
<sup>3</sup> Napa Partners potentially could provide an end run around the voter’s wishes to restrict UCL claims were a plaintiff fails to establish an actual economic injury.
Proposition 64 was enacted “to prohibit private attorneys from filing lawsuits for unfair competition where they have no client who has been injured in fact under the standing requirements of the United States Constitution.” Kwikset, 51 Cal.4th at 322.

1 Steinau was compensated for the time spent at the ceremony. Nor is there any
2 allegation that Steinau paid to attend the ceremony. In fact, Plaintiff fails to show
3 any economic harm at all. Because of this, Plaintiff cannot establish any “loss or 4 deprivation of money or property sufficient to qualify as injury in fact.” Kwitkset
5 Corp., 51 Cal. 4th at 322.
6

7
8 Plaintiff also lacks organizational standing because it fails to allege a
9 frustration of Plaintiff’s mission. An organization can only establish an injury
10 when it suffers “both a diversion of its resources and a frustration of its mission.”
11 La Asociacion de Trabajadores de Lake Forest v. City of Lake Forest, 624 F.3d
12 1083, 1088 (9th Cir. 2010) (emphasis added). The organization must show that “it 13 would have suffered some other injury if it had not diverted resources to 14 counteracting the problem.” Id.; see Scocca v. Smith, 2012 WL 2375203 (N.D.
15 Cal. June 22, 2012). The alleged practices must prevent the plaintiff “from 16 pursuing other preferred avenues to advance their mission.” Animal Legal Defense
17 Fund v. Great Bull Run, LLC, No. 14-CV-01171-MEJ, 2014 WL 2568685, at *4
18 (N.D. Cal. June 6, 2014). Plaintiff has made no such showing. Plaintiff, instead,
19 merely states that Steinau’s “time working for Plaintiff was diverted to 20 investigating and exposing these acts, and attempting to convince authorities to 21 take action.” Compl. ¶ 25. Just like the plaintiffs in La Asociacion, the complaint
22 is devoid of any reference to “a frustration of its purpose.” La Asociacion, 624
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 F.3d at 1089. The plaintiff in Bull Run alleged – unlike Plaintiff here – that the
2 diverted employees “would have otherwise worked on projects to further
3 Plaintiffs’ missions.” Without sufficient allegations showing that Steinau was 4 diverted from other preferred avenues of advocacy, Plaintiff cannot establish an 5 injury in fact.
6
7

8 Plaintiff also fails the second prong of Kwitkset. Plaintiff alleges no facts
9 sufficient to show they have lost money or property caused by any alleged unfair
10 competition. In fact, the complaint fails to identify any loss of money or property
11 let alone a loss of money or property caused by the Chabad’s conduct. Plaintiff’s
12 TRO application evidences the lack of harm because they fail to cite a single 13 allegation supporting the organization’s standing. Because Plaintiff fails to 14 identify any loss of money or property, they must not be granted standing.
15
16
17

18 2. The Chabad’s Religious Ceremony is Not a “Business Act
19 or Practice” That Would Subject it to California’s UCL
20

21 Plaintiff fails to establish the Chabad engages in any “business act or 22 practice” as part of its kaporos ceremony. The UCL prohibits “any unfair 23 competition, which means ‘any unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or 24 practice.’” In re Pomona Valley Med. Grp., Inc., 476 F.3d 665, 674 (9th Cir.
25 2007) (quoting Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, et seq.). The UCL promotes “fair
26
27 business competitions and governs both anti-competitive business practices and 28

1 consumer injuries.” Bull Run, 2014 WL 2568685, at *6. Plaintiff must show that
2 the act or practice was “committed pursuant to business activity.” Pinel v. Aurora
3 Loan Servs., LLC, 814 F. Supp. 2d 930, 937 (N.D. Cal. 2011). That is because the 4 UCL is concerned with “wrongful conduct in commercial enterprises.” People v.
5 Nat’l Research Co. of Cal., 201 Cal. App. 2d 765, 770 (1962). The complaint fails
6 to allege that the Chabad was engaged in any business activity.
7

8
9 In an effort to assert a UCL claim, Plaintiff mischaracterizes a religious 10 ceremony as a business practice to assert a UCL claim. The Chabad conducts the 11 kaporos ceremony in accordance with centuries-long Jewish custom. The 12 donations the Chabad receives for the ceremony are, contrary to Plaintiff’s
13 assertions, “given to the poor.”<sup>4</sup> Plaintiff’s allegation that the Chabad conducts the 14 kaporos ceremony “for profit” is thus false, and in any event fails to establish that 15 the ceremony is part of any “business activity” or “commercial enterprise” simply 16 because money changes hands in the process. See Pinel, 814 F. Supp. 2d at 937;
17 Nat’l Research Co. of Cal., 201 Cal. App. 2d at 770.
18
19
20
21

22 Plaintiff offers no authority for the notion that a religious ceremony is a
23 business practice subject to the UCL. In fact, the cases cited by Plaintiff in its 24

---

25
26 <sup>4</sup> Chabad of Irvine, Kaparot, available at 27 http://www.chabadirvine.org/holidays/JewishNewYear/template\_cdo/aid/989585/jewish/Kaparot.htm (last visited October 11, 2016).
28

1 TRO application establish that a religious institution may only be subject to the
2 UCL when it actually engages in “business practices.” See Pl.’s Ex Parte
3 Application for TRO, Dkt. 2 at 8. Each case involves a practice that could 4 regularly be engaged in by any business. See Exec. Comm. Representing Signing
5 Petitioners of Archdiocese of Western U.S. v. Kaplan, 2004 WL 6084228 (C.D.
6 Cal. Sept. 17, 2004) (involving fundraising solicitations); Maktab Tarighe Oveysi
7 Shah Maghsoudi, Inc. v. Kianfar, 179 F.3d 1244 (9th Cir. 1999) (involving 8 intellectual property rights not a UCL claim); Pines v. Tomson, 160 Cal. App. 3d
9 370 (1984) (involving a business telephone directory). None of these cases stands
10 for the broad proposition that a religious ceremony is a “business practice.”
11
12
13
14

15 Plaintiff’s proposed reading of the UCL would impermissibly broaden the 16 definition of “business act or practice” beyond recognition. Invoking the UCL
17 when “any pecuniary element” is involved, would read the statute’s requirement
18 that the conduct be a “business act or practice” out of the law. Even People v.
19 McKale, cited by the Plaintiff, still requires the activity to be “business conduct.”
20 25 Cal.3d 626, 632 (1979). The kaporos ceremony is a religious rite conducted in 21 preparation for Yom Kippur. Clearly a religious ceremony of this nature cannot 22 be “business conduct.” Furthermore, a synagogue conducting a religious 23 ceremony cannot be said to be engaged in a “commercial enterprise.”
24
25
26
27
28 Accordingly, Plaintiff fails to satisfy an essential element of its UCL claim.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

3. The Kaporos Ceremony Does Not Violate California’s Law Against Animal Cruelty; the Religious Ritual Is Not Done With “Malicious” Intent.

Because the Chabad’s kaporos ceremony is done in a humane manner for a religious purpose, Plaintiff cannot demonstrate a likelihood of success on its sole argument that the ceremony violates California’s animal cruelty statute. The kaporos ceremony is a ritual in which participants seek atonement. Participants gently pass a chicken over one’s head, reading the ceremonial text, and then slaughter the animal in the humane manner of all kosher slaughter.<sup>5</sup> As explained on Chabad’s website, “It is of utmost importance to treat the chickens humanely, and not to, G-d forbid, cause them any pain or discomfort. Jewish law very clearly forbids causing any unnecessary pain to any of G-d's creations. The repugnance of such an unkind act would certainly be amplified on this day, the eve of the day when we beseech G-d for – perhaps undeserved – kindness and mercy.”<sup>6</sup> The

---

<sup>5</sup> Id.

<sup>6</sup> Chabad Irvine, The Kaporot Ceremony, available at http://www.chabadirvine.org/holidays/JewishNewYear/template\_cdo/aid/989585/jewish/Kaporot.htm

1 chicken’s “monetary worth [is] given to the poor, or, as is more popular today, the
2 chicken itself is donated to a charitable cause.”<sup>7</sup>

3
4 California and federal law both specifically approve of such kosher
5 slaughtering practices as humane. Cal. Code Regs. tit. 3, § 1246.15(a) (“Where a
6 method of slaughter is prescribed by Kosher or other rules of the Jewish faith,
7 Islamic and other faiths and causes the poultry to lose consciousness through
8 anemia of the brain resulting from the simultaneous severance of both carotid
9 arteries with a sharp instrument, it shall be considered a humane method of 10 slaughter.”); Cal. Food & Agric. Code § 19501(b)(2) (“The animal shall be 11 handled, prepared for slaughter, and slaughtered in accordance with ritual
12 requirements of the Jewish or any other religious faith that prescribes a method of 13 slaughter whereby the animal suffers loss of consciousness by anemia of the brain
14 caused by the simultaneous and instantaneous severance of the carotid arteries
15 with a sharp instrument.”); 7 U.S.C. § 1902(b) (finding “slaughtering in 16 accordance with the ritual requirements of the Jewish faith or any other religious 17 faith that prescribes a method of slaughter whereby the animal suffers loss of 18 consciousness by anemia of the brain caused by the simultaneous and 19 instantaneous severance of the carotid arteries with a sharp instrument and 20 handling in connection with such slaughtering” to be humane); 7 U.S.C. § 1906
21
22
23
24
25
26
27

---

28 <sup>7</sup> Id.

1 (“Nothing in this Act shall be construed to prohibit, abridge, or in any way hinder
2 the religious freedom of any person or group. Notwithstanding any other provision
3 of this Act, in order to protect freedom of religion, ritual slaughter and the 4 handling or other preparation of livestock for ritual slaughter are exempted from 5 the terms of this Act.”). The kaporos ceremony’s slaughter is done in the humane
6 way that all kosher meat is slaughtered.
7
8

9 California’s animal cruelty statute, Penal Code Section 597(a), prohibits the 10 malicious and intentional killing of an animal. Malice is an essential element of 11 the crime of animal cruelty. Ex parte Mauch, 134 Cal. 500, 500 (1901). It is 12 defined as an “intent to do a wrongful act.” People v. Dunn, 39 Cal. App. 3d 418,
13 421 (1974). Acts of “willful and unlawful cruelty” satisfy the malice standard. Ex
14 parte Mauch, 134 Cal. at 501.<sup>8</sup>
15
16
17

18 Participants in the kaporos ceremony do not have any intention to do a 19 “wrongful act.” As noted above, the chicken is slaughtered in a manner deemed 20 humane under both California state and federal law. Plaintiff’s philosophical 21 disagreement with the ancient notion of substitutionary atonement that is central to 22 the faith of those practicing the kaporos ritual (see Compl. ¶ 22, Doc. 1, 23
24
25

---

26 <sup>8</sup> In the homicide context, the “malice” standard can be satisfied when “the 27 circumstances attending the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart.” Cal.
28 Penal Code § 188.

1 caricaturing the practice as “taking out vengeance on an innocent animal”) does
2 not render the practice inhumane or malicious. There is no cruelty or malice, as
3 defined by law. Accordingly, there is no intention to do anything “wrongful” as a
4 matter of law.
5

6 Plaintiff has not cited any cases holding that kosher or other religious
7 slaughter violates California’s animal cruelty statute. The facts are distinctly
8 different from other actions brought under the animal cruelty statute. Courts have 9 concluded that the malice standard is satisfied by: beating and torturing a dog, Ex
10 parte Mauch, 134 Cal. at 500; filming mice being tortured and crushed to death,
11 People v. Thomason, 84 Cal. App. 4th 1064, 1066 (2000); stabbing an ex-
12 girlfriend’s dog to death out of spite, People v. Smith, 150 Cal. App. 4th 89, 94
13 (2007); or throwing rocks and shooting guns at animals to get them off one’s land,
14 Dunn, 39 Cal. App. 3d at 421. Plaintiff cites no cases using “malicious” to 15 describe participation in a religious atonement ceremony in accordance with 16 federal and state law regarding the kosher slaughter of animals. This Court cannot 17 condemn the state of mind of asking for atonement as “malicious” nor can it
18 categorize the practice of kosher slaughter as “inhumane.”
19
20
21
22
23
24

25 4. Enjoining the Chabad’s Kaporos Ceremony Violates the 26 Free Exercise Clause.
27
28

1 California already recognizes that “[w]here a method of slaughter is
2 prescribed by Kosher or other rules of the Jewish faith, Islamic and other faiths
3 and causes the poultry to lose consciousness through anemia of the brain resulting 4 from the simultaneous severance of both carotid arteries with a sharp instrument,
5 it shall be considered a humane method of slaughter.” Cal. Code Regs. tit. 3, §
6 1246.15(a). Plaintiff’s failure to bring this regulation to the Court’s attention in its 7 application for the TRO casts a shadow over that proceeding. More importantly,
8 that regulation precludes the granting of a preliminary injunction, as Plaintiff’s
9 cannot prevail on their claim in the face of that law. What is more, enjoining the 10 kaporos ceremony would violate the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment
11 to the United States Constitution.
12
13
14
15

16
17 a) Strict Scrutiny Applies

18 By its terms, the First Amendment protects the “free exercise” of religion.
19 Plaintiff’s request relief runs headlong into the First Amendment’s protection,
20 seeking prohibit an activity that is at the core of the “exercise” of Defendants’
21 faith.
22

23 It is true that an “across-the-board criminal prohibition on a particular form
24 of conduct” does not violate the Free Exercise Clause simply because it has an 25 adverse impact on a religious practice. Employment Division v. Smith, 494 U.S.
26 872, 884 (1990). But California Penal Code Section 597(a) on which Plaintiff
27
28

1 premises its UCL action is not an “across-the-board criminal prohibition” on the
2 killing on animals. As one would expect, there are a host of exceptions to Section
3 597(a) found in California Penal Code Section 599(c). As the Supreme Court has 4 explained, when a law, “on what seems to be a per se basis, deems hunting,
5 slaughter of animals for food, eradication of insects and pests” as exemptions to 6 the supposed general rule, then the law is not generally applicable. Church of 7 Lukumi Babalu Aye v. City of Hialeah, 508 U.S. 520, 537 (1993). This is so
8 because exceptions to the general rule “require[e] an evaluation of the particular
9 justification for the killing” and thus “represent[t] a system of ‘individualized
10 governmental assessment of the reasons for the relevant conduct.’” Id. at 537
11 (quoting Smith, 494 U.S. at 884). Thus, “in circumstances in which individualized 12 exemptions from a general requirement are available, the government may not 13 refuse to extend that system to cases of religious hardship without compelling
14 reason.” Id. (internal quotations and citations omitted).

20 Section 599c exempts all “game laws” within California – a robust set of 21 regulations allowing for the killing of various species. Second, Section 599c
22 exempts “laws for or against the destruction of certain birds.” Third, Section 599c
23 exempts the killing of animals known to be dangerous. Fourth, Section 599c
24 exempts the killing of all animals used for food. Fifth, Section 599c exempts 25 animals slaughtered for scientific experiments or investigations for academic 26
27
28

1 purposes. Any of these exceptions to Section 597(a) undermine Plaintiff's
2 argument that Smith's general rule applies.

3
4 The Chabad is not challenging Section 597(a) on its face and need not prove
5 a discriminatory intent. See Laurence H. Tribe, American Constitutional Law § 5-
6 16, at 956 (3d ed. 2000) (“Under Smith, a law that is not neutral or that is not
7 generally applicable can violate the Free Exercise Clause without regard to the 8 motives of those who enacted the measure.”). Instead, the Chabad is challenging
9 Plaintiff's request that this Court enforce Section 597(a) in a manner that prohibits
10 the killing of animals in a humane manner for religious purposes pursuant to a law
11 that permits the humane killing of animals for any number of secular reasons. As 12 the Supreme Court has noted, “[a]ll laws are selective to some extent, but 13 categories of selection are of paramount concern when a law has the incidental
14 effect of burdening a religious practice.” Church of Lukumi, 508 U.S. at 542. For 15 the Court to determine that Section 597(a) prohibits Chabad's kaporos ceremony
16 but not other secularly motivated animal killings, the Court would be engaging in 17 the prohibited act of “deciding that secular motivations are more important than 18 religious motivations.” Fraternal Order of Police v. City of Newark, 170 F.3d 359,
19 365 (3d Cir. 1999); see also Stormans, Inc. v. Wiesman, 794 F.3d 1064, 1079 (9th
20 Cir. 2015) (“A law is not generally applicable if its prohibitions substantially
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 underincluded non-religiously motivated conduct that might endanger the same
2 governmental interest that the law is designed to protect.”).

3
4 The purpose and intent of Section 597(a) is irrelevant. What is relevant is 5 that there are secular exceptions, and because there are secular exemptions, strict
6 scrutiny applies. See Tenafly Eruv Ass’n v. Borough of Tenafly, 309 F.3d 144, 168
7 (3d Cir. 2002) (“Just as the exemptions for secularly motivated killings in Lukumi
8 indicated that the city was discriminating against Santeria animal sacrifice, and 9 just as the medical exemption in Fraternal Order of Police indicated that the police
10 department was discriminating...the Borough’s invocation [of the ordinance]
11 against conduct motivated by Orthodox Jewish beliefs...[leads to the conclusion]
12 that we must apply strict scrutiny.”). Thus, “[f]or laws that are not neutral or not 13 generally applicable, strict scrutiny applies.” Stormans, 794 F.3d at 1076; see 14 Lukumi, 508 U.S. at 531-32 (“A law failing to satisfy these requirements must be 15 justified by a compelling governmental interest and must be narrowly tailored to 16 advance that interest.”).

17
18
19
20
21
22 b) There is no compelling governmental interest to ban
23 the kaporos ceremony.

24 Plaintiff bears the burden of justifying the enforcement of Section 597(a)
25 against the Chabad as a matter of law. It is clearly “established in our strict 26 scrutiny jurisprudence that a law cannot be regarded as protecting an interest ‘of 27 the highest order...when it leaves appreciable damage to that supposedly vital
28

1 interest unprohibited.” Church of Lukumi, 508 U.S. at 547 (internal quotation and
2 citation omitted). The exceptions listed in Section 599c simply doom any claim
3 that enforcing Section 597(a) is a compelling interest. Plaintiff has not and cannot 4 explain the difference between the humane killing of an animal as part of a
5 religious ceremony and the robust list of permitted animal killings in Section
6
7
8 599c.

9
10 c) Banning the traditional kaporos ceremony practiced
11 for at least 1,100 years is not the least restrictive
12 means for furthering any interest.

13 In order to satisfy the strict scrutiny applicable to laws that burden religious
14 practice, Plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating that there is no less restrictive
15 means of accomplishing the governmental interest at issue. Plaintiff attempts to 16 flip this analysis on its head by claiming the Defendants can exercise their faith in 17 another manner, pointing to some Jewish congregations that do not use chickens
18 as part of kaporos. This analysis misplaces the burden of proof and was flatly
19 rejected by the Supreme Court. See Hernandez v. Comm’r, 490 U.S. 680, 699
20 (1989) (“It is not within the judicial ken to question the centrality of particular
21 beliefs or practices to a faith, or the validity of particular litigants’ interpretations
22 of those creeds.”). Defendants are entitled to exercise their religion in the manner
23 they deem appropriate, not in the manner that other religious adherents or the 24 Plaintiffs would prefer. See Lukumi Babalu, 508 U.S. at 531 (“Although the 25
26
27
28

1 practice of animal sacrifice may seem abhorrent to some, religious beliefs need
2 not be acceptable, logical, consistent, or comprehensible to others in order to merit
3 First Amendment protection.” (internal quotation marks omitted)).
4

5 Here, Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate that there is no other means to 6 achieve any purportedly compelling governmental interest short of a Preliminary
7 Injunction prohibiting a ceremony that produces a result (the humane death of a
8 animal) that is no different than if the chicken were killed under one of the 9 permitted purposes under Section 599c. That other congregations may engage in a
10 different ceremony is irrelevant. The Court may not assess the merits of Chabad’s
11 claim that it must adhere to at least 1100 years of religious tradition.
12
13
14

15 5. Enjoining the Chabad’s Kaporos Ceremony Violates the 16 Free Speech Clause.
17

18 As explained further in Part III, enjoining the Chabad’s kaporos ceremony
19 also violates other First Amendment rights, such as the right to free speech.
20
21

22 B. LIKELIHOOD OF IRREPARABLE HARM
23

24 Plaintiff cannot demonstrate that it would be harmed without a preliminary 25 injunction, and Plaintiff cannot meet its burden of showing a likelihood of 26 irreparable harm. In Plaintiff’s Ex Parte Application for a TRO, Plaintiff alleges 27 that harm to the animals is irreparable harm. However, the legal standard is 28

1 whether “[the plaintiff] is likely to suffer irreparable injury.” Klein v. City of San
2 Clemente, 584 F.3d 1196, 1207 (9th Cir. 2009) (emphasis added). Plaintiff next
3 asserts that it and the public are subjected to “significant public health risks” and 4 “thousands of dollars in unnecessary costs.” Pl.’s Ex Parte App. at 10, Doc. 2. The 5 TRO does not clarify either of those unsupported allegations. It nowhere else
6 mentions health risks, and it is unclear why Plaintiff alleges “thousands of dollars”
7 in costs. In any event, monetary damages alone are not irreparable. L.A. Mem’l
8 Coliseum Com. v. Nat’l Football League, 634 F.2d 1197, 1202 (9th Cir. 1980).
9 Plaintiff has not demonstrated that it would be injured, and any harm caused is far
10 outweighed by the guaranteed irreparable harm that the TRO or a preliminary 11 injunction would inflict on the Chabad’s religious exercise.
12
13
14
15

16
17 C. BALANCE OF EQUITIES
18

19 Because the kaporos ceremony occurs once per year during Yom Kippur, 20 the ex parte TRO threatens to bar this ceremony completely, without granting the 21 Chabad opportunity to be heard. The preliminary injunction could similarly bar
22 this constitutional religious practice in future years. The Ninth Circuit has 23 repeatedly held that “[t]he loss of First Amendment freedoms, for even minimal 24 periods of time, unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury.” Thalheimer v. City
25
26
27
28

1 of San Diego, 645 F.3d 1109, 1128 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Klein, 584 F.3d at 2 1208; Elrod v. Burns, 427 U.S. 347, 373 (1976)).

3
4 Even the mere threat to constitutional rights can constitute irreparable
5 injury. “[T]he fact that a case raises serious First Amendment questions compels a 6 finding that there exists ‘the potential for irreparable injury, or that at the very 7 least the balance of hardships tips sharply in [Appellants’] favor.’” Sammartano v.
8 First Judicial Dist. Court, 303 F.3d 959, 973 (9th Cir. 2002) (quoting Viacom
9 Int’l, Inc. v. FCC, 828 F. Supp. 741, 744 (N.D. Ca. 1993)). In the Ninth Circuit, “a
10 party seeking preliminary injunctive relief in a First Amendment context can 11 establish irreparable injury sufficient to merit the grant of relief by demonstrating 12 the existence of a colorable First Amendment claim.” Id.

13
14
15
16 Plaintiff argues that the harm to the Chabad is minimal because Judaism,
17 properly construed, does not require slaughtering of chickens. See Pl.’s Motion Ex
18 Parte TRO at 7 (“Defendants’ religion does not actually require them to kill and 19 dispose of chickens. . . . The only real harm to Defendants would be economic.”). It
20 is wholly inappropriate for Plaintiff to dictate to the Chabad what the Chabad’s
21 religion commands. And it would be even more inappropriate for the Court to put 22 its seal of approval on Plaintiff’s interpretation of the Chabad’s religion. It would 23 be unconstitutional for the Court to dismiss the burden on the Chabad by 24 disagreeing about the proper interpretation of religious doctrine. See Hernandez,

1 490 U.S. at 699 (“It is not within the judicial ken to question the centrality of
2 particular beliefs or practices to a faith, or the validity of particular litigants’
3 interpretations of those creeds.”).
4

5
6 D. PUBLIC INTEREST

7
8 Because the TRO threatens to eliminate the Chabad’s ability to perform a
9 religious rite on Yom Kippur this year and the preliminary injunction threatens 10 this right in future years, they conflict with the public’s interest in protecting the 11 free exercise of religion. “Courts considering requests for preliminary injunctions
12 have consistently recognized the significant public interest in upholding First
13 Amendment principles.” Thalheimer, 645 F.3d at 1129 (quoting Sammartano, 303
14 F.3d at 974). “[I]t is always in the public interest to prevent the violation of a 15 party’s constitutional rights.” Sammartano, 303 F.3d at 974 (quoting G&V
16 Lounge, Inc. v. Mich. Liquor Control Com’n, 23 F.3d 1071, 1079 (6th Cir. 1994)).
17
18 Therefore, Plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction must be denied.
19
20
21

22
23 III. Chabad’s Motion to Strike the Complaint Under California’s
24 Anti-Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation Statute

25
26 The Chabad further moves to strike Plaintiff’s complaint under California’s
27 anti-Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation (“Anti-SLAPP”) statute, found 28

1 at California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16. California’s Anti-SLAPP statute
2 provides that the Court should strike any “cause of action against a person arising
3 from any act of that person in furtherance of the person’s right of petition or free
4 speech under the United States Constitution or the California Constitution in 5 connection with a public issue, unless the court determines that the plaintiff has 6 established that there is a probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim.”
7 Cal. Code Civ. P. § 425.16(b)(1). Because Plaintiff’s claim implicates the 8 Chabad’s free speech rights under both the United States Constitution and the 9 California Constitution, the burden shifts to the Plaintiff to show that it will likely 10 prevail on the merits, which it cannot do.
11
12
13
14

15 The Anti-SLAPP statute is meant to dismiss actions that “masquerade as 16 ordinary lawsuits but are intended to deter ordinary people from exercising their 17 political or legal rights or to punish them for doing so.” Makaeff v. Trump Univ., 18 LLC, 715 F.3d 254, 261 (9th Cir. 2013) (internal quotation marks omitted). “To 19 prevail on an anti-SLAPP motion, the moving defendant must make a prima facie
20 showing that the plaintiff’s suit arises from an act in furtherance of the defendant’s
21 constitutional right to free speech.” Id. “The burden then shifts to the plaintiff ...
22 to establish a reasonable probability that it will prevail on its claim in order for 23 that claim to survive dismissal.” Id. Although framed as a rule of state procedure,
24
25
26
27
28

1 California’s Anti-SLAPP statute protects substantive rights and thus applies in
2 federal court. Newsham v. Lockheed, 190 F.3d 963, 973 (9th Cir. 1999).

3
4 Courts do not take a formalistic approach as to what causes of action “arise
5 from” acts in furtherance of petition or free speech rights, because they “construe
6 the anti-SLAPP statute broadly to protect the constitutional rights of petition and 7 free speech.” Anderson v. Geist, 236 Cal. App. 4th 79, 84 (2015). Thus, for a
8 cause of action to be considered “arising from” an act in furtherance of free speech
9 rights, courts look to the defendant’s activity, rather than the plaintiff’s claims. See
10 Navellier v. Sletten, 52 P.3d 703, 711 (Cal. 2002) (“The anti-SLAPP statute’s
11 definitional focus is not on the form of the plaintiff’s cause of action but, rather,
12 the defendant’s activity that gives rise to his or her asserted liability—and whether 13 that activity constitutes protected speech or petitioning.”). It is thus legally
14 irrelevant that Plaintiff brought a claim for Illegal Business Practices in Violation
15 of the Unfair Competition Law. The underlying conduct in Plaintiff’s complaint is 16 the ritual sacrifice of chickens in the Kaparot ceremony. If that act is done in 17 furtherance of free speech rights, then Plaintiff’s complaint puts forward a cause
18 of action against Defendants that arises from an act in furtherance of Defendants’
19 free speech rights for purposes of the anti-SLAPP statute.
20
21
22
23
24
25

26 And Supreme Court precedent is clear that Defendants’ act here does in fact
27 implicate free speech rights. The Supreme Court has recognized that while the 28

1 “First Amendment literally forbids the abridgement only of ‘speech,’” conduct
2 “may be ‘sufficiently imbued with elements of communication to fall within the
3 scope of the First and Fourteenth Amendments.’” Texas v. Johnson, 491 U.S. 397,
4 404 (1989) (quoting Spence v. Washington, 418 U.S. 405, 409 (1974)). “In 5 deciding whether particular conduct possesses sufficient communicative elements
6 to bring the First Amendment into play,” the Court looks at whether “an intent to 7 convey a particularized message was present, and whether the likelihood was great
8 that the message would be understood by those who viewed it.” Id. (internal 9 quotation marks and alterations omitted). The kaporos ceremony meets both 10 prongs: the ceremony is meant to communicate substitutionary atonement, see
11 Chabad Irvine, The Kaparot Ceremony, available at 12 http://www.chabadirvine.org/holidays/JewishNewYear/template\_cdo/aid/989585/j
13 ewish/Kaparot.htm (“We ask of G-d that if we were destined to be the recipients
14 of harsh decrees in the new year, may they be transferred to this chicken in the 15 merit of this mitzvah of charity.”), and assists any viewers by communicating that 16 message with certain spoken language, see id. (“[W]ave the chicken over your
17 head in circular motions three times—once while saying, ‘This is my exchange,’
18 again when saying ‘This is my substitute,’ and again when saying, ‘This is my 19 expiation.’”). The ceremony is thus expressive conduct, meaning that Plaintiff’s
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 cause of action arises from an act by Defendants in furtherance of their free speech
2 rights.<sup>9</sup>

3
4 Finally, in order to qualify under the anti-SLAPP statute, these free speech
5 rights must be exercised in connection with a public issue. California courts
6 distinguish between “wholly private matter[s]” and matters that are connected to a
7 “public issue.” Moore v. Shaw, 116 Cal. App. 4th 182, 196 (2004). The kaporos
8 ceremony is not a wholly private matter; it is a public ceremony that allows
9 members of a religious community to celebrate together. The Plaintiff’s complaint
10 thus is a SLAPP action of exactly the type against which the anti-SLAPP statute is 11 meant to protect against.
12
13
14

15 Because Defendants have met the first prong of the anti-SLAPP statute, the 16 burden shifts to the Plaintiff to prove that there is a probability that it will prevail
17 on the claim. The Plaintiff “must demonstrate that the complaint is both legally
18 sufficient and supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts to sustain a
19
20
21

---

22 <sup>9</sup> There is no appreciable difference between the kaporos ceremony and other
23 ceremonies, such as a wedding ceremony, in that they both are a form of speech
24 conveying messages. See Kaahumanu v. Hawaii, 682 F.3d 789, 799 (9th Cir.
25 2012) (“We have no difficulty concluding that wedding ceremonies are protected
26 expression under the First Amendment”). Thus, the kaporos ceremony is equally 27 protected.
28

1 favorable judgment if the evidence submitted by the plaintiff is credited.”
2 D’Arrigo Bros. of Ca. v. United Farmworkers of Am., 224 Cal. App. 4th 790, 800
3 (2014) (internal quotation marks omitted; emphasis added). As shown above, the 4 Plaintiff’s complaint is legally deficient. Plaintiff thus cannot meet its burden
5 under the anti-SLAPP statute and its complaint must be struck.
6
7

8
9 IV. Conclusion

10
11 For the foregoing reasons, the Chabad moves for the TRO to be dissolved
12 immediately to enable its constitutional kaporos ceremony to continue.
13 Additionally, the Chabad requests that the Court deny Plaintiff’s motion for a
14 preliminary injunction and the Court strike the Complaint as a violation of 15 California’s anti-SLAPP statute.
16
17

18
19 Dated: October 11, 2016
20
21

22 M Jones and Associates, PC
23 Attorneys for Defendants

24
25

26 Michael Jones
27
28

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Matthew T. Martens***
matthew.martens@wilmerhale.com

Gregory Boden
gregory.boden@wilmerhale.com
California Bar Number 301779

Kevin Gallagher***
kevin.gallagher@wilmerhale.com
WILMER CUTLER PICKERING HALE
AND DORR LLP
1875 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20006
Telephone: (202) 663-6921
Fax: (202) 663-6363

Attorneys for Defendants

Hiram S. Sasser, III***
hsasser@firstliberty.org
Jeremy Dys***
jdys@firstliberty.org
Stephanie N. Phillips
staub@firstliberty.org
California Bar No. 301324
FIRST LIBERTY INSTITUTE
2001 West Plano Parkway,
Suite 1600
Plano, TX 75075
Telephone: (972) 941-4444
Facsimile: (972) 941-4457

Attorneys for Defendants

*To be admitted Pro Hac Vice